

Table of contents

| | |
|---|-----|
| Preface..... | 9 |
| Martina Werner and Wolfgang U. Dressler | |
| A general model of word structure and its application to Danish, emphasizing the interaction between morphology and prosody..... | 25 |
| Hans Basbøll | |
| Non-prototypical derivation in Zamucoan..... | 47 |
| Pier Marco Bertinetto, Luca Ciucci | |
| German adjective gradation in rural and urban regions of Austria..... | 77 |
| Katharina Korecky-Kröll | |
| The fuzzy border between derivation and inflection: diachrony and grammaticalization..... | 107 |
| Johanna Laakso | |
| Nouns as agreement targets in Romance: inflection and derivation... | 125 |
| Michele Loporcaro | |
| The Hungarian desiderative -hAtnék nominalization – an evaluative approach..... | 157 |
| Boglárka Németh, Ferenc Kiefer† | |
| Morphology and verbal plurality in Arabic with a special focus on some varieties spoken in the Fertile Crescent..... | 181 |
| Stephan Procházka | |
| Diminutives inside derivation and outside inflection in Romance..... | 205 |
| Franz Rainer | |
| First-language acquisition of agent and instrument nouns in German as (non-)prototypical derivational categories..... | 231 |
| Sabine Sommer-Lolei, Wolfgang U. Dressler | |
| The diachronic increase in morphological complexity in German infinitive nominalization..... | 261 |
| Martina Werner | |

